

To Whom It May Concern,

I share the dream of many Cottage Food business owners of growing our small business and transitioning into a brick and mortar. The current revenue cap does not allow us to truly gauge how successful our business will be once we transition to a store front. Raising the cap will allow a small business to thrive and become economically viable. This will allow the transition into a brick and mortar to happen with an existing customer base that will help entrepreneurs be successful during the often difficult 1st year after opening. Raising the cap will help Maryland small businesses thrive and continue to build the tax base for our state.

Respectfully,
Andrew Roy
Twin Bears Bakery